Case IH appoints a new dealer in The Borders

Case IH has announced the appointment of a new dealer to cover The Borders and North Northumberland. G Marshall (Tractors) Ltd is based in St Boswells, Roxburghshire.

Founded in the late 1970s as an agricultural engineering business, G Marshall (Tractors) Ltd is owned by George Marshall and his wife Shelia. Their son David has recently joined the company. The business operates from purpose-built dealership facilities on the Charlesfield Industrial Estate, comprising a showroom, offices, workshop, parts department and storage.

A well-resourced, modern agricultural machinery dealership, the company has made a large investment in the Case IH franchise and recruited new staff to support owners with a full sales, service and parts back up service.

From a farming background, George Marshall states: "We are delighted to have been appointed by Case IH. In this area we have a strong base of farmers who understand the value of investing in new technology, where knowledgeable dealers with the right advice and products play an important role.

"The farming area is one of the best stock areas of the country and we also have some of the best arable land in the UK, mainly operated by larger farming units. This represents a very strong base of existing and potential customers who will benefit from the fact that we now handle the full range of Case IH products.

"In addition to Case IH tractors from 55hp to almost 700hp we are also able to offer customers the highly regarded Axial-Flow™ range of combines, the RB-Series round balers and LB-Series rectangular balers, together with the new Farmlift range of telescopic loaders which were launched at LAMMA 2014."

Barry Ward, Area Sales Manager – Northern England & South East Scotland for Case IH, adds:
